U. S. SEEKS TO INSURE PEACE FOR ALL TIME

Mutual Use Of Strategic Bases To Be Foundation For New System

PROGRAM AIMED AT JAPS

Full Responsibility Can Not Be Shouldered By America, Is Claim

WASHINGTON, March 9—The United States government today is actively considering the establishment of a permanent United Nations mutual defense system in the Pacific after the war.

Plans being studied by the state department involve close cooperation between the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Netherlands and China to maintain lasting peace in the Pacific.

Mutual use of strategic air and naval bases to enable joint policing of the Pacific is expected to be the foundation on which the United Nations defensive system will be built.

Under this system, the former British naval base at Singapore, when recaptured from the Japanese, would be made available to all the Pacific members of the United Nations for police and defensive purposes.

Open Hawaiian Port
Likewise, America's official post-war planners believe this country would have to make the naval base facilities at Hawaii available to the British and other United Nations with whom America cooperates in maintaining peace in the Pacific.

The state department is convinced it would be a mistake for the United States to attempt to assume full responsibility for the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles has made it clear that this country does not want to make an American lake out of the Pacific.

American officials believe that any such disposition on America's part would engender suspicion and lead to accusations of imperialism against the United States.

TOTAL WAR TO SLOW ACTIVITY OF SANTA CLAUS

NEW YORK, March 9 — Total war will reach into Santa Claus' toy bag with a vengeance next Christmas, it was disclosed today at the 41st annual meeting of the American Toy Fair.

Electric trains, mechanical toys, velocipedes and all rubber toys will be completely missing.

Most toys will be made of "non-strategic" materials such as wood, cardboard and fabrics. But even wooden toys will be curtailed as manufacturers are having difficulties obtaining the correct type of lumber and are faced with manpower and transportation difficulties too.

Ruml Tax Plan Backers Gird for Battle If Program is Rejected

WASHINGTON, March 9 — With Republicans marshalling support for the Ruml tax plan, the weary house ways and means committee reconvened in secret session again today faced with the prospects of an open battle on the house floor if the plan is not adopted.

A prominent GOP leader predicted that the controversial Ruml proposal would gain at least 190 votes from the GOP side of the aisle, and pointed out that a number of Democrats are already on record for it.

A total of 218 votes would be needed to upset the ways and means committee should it finally report a pay-as-you-go tax plan not acceptable to the house.

The committee late yesterday rejected the Ruml plan by a 16 to 9 vote, but the nine Republicans who supported it immediately issued a statement that they were "prepared to carry the fight for its adoption to the house floor."

Gearhart Joins Foes

The 10th Republican on the 25-member committee, Rep. Gearhart of California, joined the Democrats in opposing it, contending that the present system should be retained "because the Ruml plan and each of its variations all have the defect of forgiving the taxes of people who are able and willing to pay."

The committee voted down both extremes of the question yesterday. Not only did it reject the Ruml plan which would forgive a whole year's taxes, but it also defeated 13 to 12 a proposal to leave the present system as it is and forgive none.

Still to be considered by the committee, which has been wrestling with the problem for five weeks, are several compromises on the Ruml plan which would abate only a part of a year's taxes. The Republicans are square on record against all of these modifications.

STASSEN URGES PEACE SECURITY

Safeguarding Human Rights Through World Congress Seen As Necessity

WASHINGTON, March 9—Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota today advocated United Nations establishment of an international congress or general assembly to safeguard human rights after the war.

Stassen told the United Nations forum in Washington that centuries of experience indicate that a legislative or parliamentary body "best safeguards human rights."

"The number of seats and voting strength of the United Nations members should be agreed upon on a formula basis that would translate the actual strength of the respective member nations in the world into comparative voting strength in the parliament," he said.

"This would mean that population alone would not be a basis for representation, since population is not the only basis for the strength of a nation in the world. Other factors such as literacy, industrial development, the sacrifice of men, and the contribution of materials to win the war, the willingness to carry the burdens of peace, might be factors in the formula."

NO SHORTAGE FORESEEN FOR BREAKFAST EGGS

WASHINGTON, March 9—Despite other food shortages, it looks like American consumers will continue to have the old favorite of eggs for breakfast.

Dr. Theodore C. Byerly, in charge of the agriculture department's poultry investigation, today said that a conservative estimate shows that if high-quality male birds are used for heading all hatchery supply flocks the egg production for 1944-45 will be increased at least 10 percent.

SOLDIER, MARINE LISTED MISSING ON WAR FRONTS

Lyman Jones, Jr., Disappears In Africa—Detail Lacking On Edwin L. Hunt

MAY BE AXIS PRISONERS

Parents Of Young Fighters Receive Notification From Washington

Two Pickaway county youths, one a soldier and the other a marine, Tuesday were reported missing in North Africa.

They are: Lyman Jones, Jr., 23, son of Mrs. Erie Jones, of Williamsport, missing North Africa.

Edwin L. Hunt, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hunt, of Salt Creek township, a marine. The Navy department telegram received by his parents who live near Laurelville did not disclose in which theatre of the war he had been serving.

Private Jones, who entered service October 22, 1941, after volunteering with the local Selective Service board, has been missing since February 17. It was during that time that Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps was engaged in offensive action in central Tunisia. It is believed possible that young Jones might be a captive. The axis reported taking American prisoners in this desert struggle.

Young Jones, a graduate of Williamsport high school in the class of 1937, had been employed at the Heisey glass works in Newark prior to volunteering for induction. His father, a retired Williamsport mail carrier, has been dead about eight years.

Private Jones' two brothers, Jesse and Robert, are both in the army. He also has four sisters. Mrs. Harry Rector of Williamsport, and three unmarried sisters who are employed in Newark. Mrs. Jones was with her daughters when she received the War department telegram notifying her that her son was missing. Mrs. Rector has also gone to Newark.

Marine Hunt left Salt Creek school in his freshman year. He enlisted in the marine corps December 20, 1941. His family includes his parents, a sister at home, two married sisters, a brother, Fred, of near Laurelville, and a brother, William, who is in the army.

Last word his parents had from him was written last January 23 from a New York postoffice.

The Hunt family lives on the Durbin Ward Wolfe farm in Salt Creek township.

CHILEAN LABOR HOPES TO JOIN IN WAR ON AXIS

NEW YORK, March 9 —Chile soon will be formally in the war on the side of the United Nations, Bernardo Ibanez, president of the Chilean Confederation of Labor and deputy of the Chilean parliament, predicted today.

"Speaking as the leader of the Chilean labor movement, I can say it is the hope and desire of the Chilean workers that our country enter the war actively," Ibanez said.

The Chilean labor deputy also predicted that Argentina will declare war against the axis just as soon as a new president is elected.

"The people of the Argentine," he said, "like the people of Chile, are deeply democratic and feel solidarity with the United Nations, in the war against Hitler."

Ibanez is visiting this country at the joint invitation of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. to help promote closer understandings between the labor movements of the United States and Chile.

"CAPTAIN WEBB" HITS ROCK PILE

Fake Officer Who Duped Reno Colony Starts Hard Labor Term

RENO, March 9—Pvt. Jacob L. Webb, wealthy New York playboy who, as "Captain Webb," enthralled the Reno divorce colony a few weeks ago with tales of his daring exploits in the south Pacific, began serving a six months term at hard labor today, following conviction on charges of impersonation and breaking military arrests.

The court martial sentence yesterday also decreed that Webb would forfeit his private's pay for the duration of the sentence.

Webb's highly embroidered account to awestruck divorcees of how he shot down 50 Jap planes in a single day, was rudely interrupted several weeks ago by Reno M. P.'s, who detected something phony in the glittering galaxy of medals on his captain's uniform.

The masquerade, which began last January 31 when he hurried on the divorce capital with the announcement that a B-17 had just landed him from the south Pacific, ended when military authorities discovered that the intrepid captain was a buck private, AWOL from Fort McDowell, Col.

His subsequent confinement "for observation" in the Reno air base hospital was merely the beginning of the pyrotechnics.

Webb's escape from the hospital the night of February 12, set off a statewide police search, which ended with his arrest in a cheap Reno rooming house a few hours later.

This time he had forsaken the army's khaki for a vivid red robe and silk pajamas.

Coincidentally, Webb's wife, the former Lenore Lemon of New York cafe society, announced that she would seek a divorce. No action has been filed as yet.

JAPS BUILDING WOOD SHIPS TO REPLACE LOSSES

LONDON, March 9 — An armada of wooden ships and rafts is being built by the Japanese in mass production to replace the current strain on Nippon's shipping, an Istanbul dispatch to the Daily Express said today.

The information, according to the dispatch, was imparted by an unnamed diplomat arriving in the Turkish capital by air from Tokyo.

'LOVE' KIDNAPER OF COLUMBUS BABY INDICTED

COLUMBUS, O., March 9—Mrs. Ruby Evelyn Cremeans, 23, of Huntingdon, W. Va., indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of kidnaping Baby Daniel Scanlon from an infant asylum in Columbus last October 12, will appear for arraignment before Judge Mell G. Underwood Friday, it was learned today. She is being held in $10,000 bond.

The grand jury refused to indict five other persons who have been arrested in connection with the same abduction. The Scanlon child was abducted from its bed in St. Ann's Infant Asylum while the mother, employed at the institution, was eating lunch. Mrs. Cremeans was arrested in Portsmouth, O., in possession of the baby last December 25. She told officers she had "fallen in love" with the child while working at the institution previously.

The court martial sentence yesterday also decreed that Webb would forfeit his private's pay for the duration of the sentence.

Webb's highly embroidered account to awestruck divorcees of how he shot down 50 Jap planes in a single day, was rudely interrupted several weeks ago by Reno M. P.'s, who detected something phony in the glittering galaxy of medals on his captain's uniform.

This time he had forsaken the army's khaki for a vivid red robe and silk pajamas.

Coincidentally, Webb's wife, the former Lenore Lemon of New York cafe society, announced that she would seek a divorce. No action has been filed as yet.

The idea was to see if citizens' were honest without first filing the indictment. It collapsed under the weight of its own stupidity.

There are some things we will stand for and some things we will sit for, but there are some things we won't kneel for.

The idea of grocery gendarmes and can conscripts is repugnant to the American idea of freedom.

No doubt some women took a discount on their food declarations, but that is habit more than dishonesty.

A woman who quotes her weight 20 pounds off, her hips four inches off and her feet two sizes off may be expected to have declared only five cans when she had eight.

Would you take her away from a hot stove and send her to a cold prison for that?

Thought for the day: Tie a can on conscripts.

REDS ASKED TO ADMIT U. S. AID

Ambassador Standley Says People Know Nothing About Assistance

WASHINGTON, March 9—Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles today announced that the statements made by American Ambassador William H. Standley in Moscow, criticizing the Soviet government for failure to show greater appreciation of American lend-lease aid, were made without prior consultation with or reference to the American state department.

In virtual repudiation of Admiral Standley's statements, Welles declared that "complete trust and understanding exists between the American and Soviet governments."

MOSCOW, March 9 — Soviet officialdom was called upon today by United States Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley to inform the Russian people of the tremendous assistance being given them by America.

"Ever since my arrival I have carefully been looking for recognition in the Russian press of the fact they are getting material help from America," Admiral Standley told a press conference of American and British newsmen.

"So far I have failed to find any."

CHAPLAIN DIES TO SAVE LIFE OF BOY SOLDIER

KEARNY, N. J., March 9 — Lieut. John Washington, a young Catholic chaplain from Kearny, died a hero aboard a torpedoed United Nations' ship, the Rev. George Murphy, pastor of St. Stephen's church, where the dead priest served as assistant, revealed today.

"After the vessel was torpedoed Father Washington made the rounds of the ship advising all to be calm. Father Murphy said he was told by survivors."

"As the ship settled rapidly a young soldier became frantic, and to calm him, Lieut. Washington took off his own life jacket and gave it to the youth. As the survivors pulled away in lifeboats they saw him quietly kneeling in prayer as the ship went down."

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, March 9 — An assault by heavy and medium bombers against the Jap base at Kiska and minor attacks against four enemy held points in the Solomons were announced today by the navy.

Results of the attack on Kiska were not reported, but all U. S. planes returned despite enemy anti-aircraft fire.

In a night attack in the Solomons, heavy U. S. bombers carried out "minor bombing attacks" on Jap installations on Kahlil and Ballale in the Northern Solomons and against Vila and Rekata bay in the Central Solomons. Results were not observed.

By International News Service

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox declared today that American forces are "stronger than ever" in the south Pacific while Japanese lines of communication are growing weaker.

"We are stronger than we have ever been in the Solomons area," Knox told a press conference.

To that, he added: "The Japanese lines of communication are growing weaker. This all goes to emphasize the process of attrition, especially with respect to sea going merchantmen." The secretary of the navy then explained that America's submarine campaign against Japanese communication lines "continues to be very successful."

Japs Have Trouble

Despite dispatches from the southwest Pacific that the Japanese are increasing their garrisons and strengthening their bases in that war zone, Knox said that the Nipponese are having "increasing difficulties in maintaining their remote bases."

The secretary, however, declined to be drawn directly into a discussion of reports from Australia in which leaders there expressed fear of Japanese power in the islands north of that continent.

Knox refused to speculate on possible future Japanese or American strategy in the Pacific conflict and said the situation there at present is in a "state of suspended animation."

Asked if he were worried about the Jap base at Munda as a possible enemy invasion springboard, Knox replied that "I'm not worried."

He pointed out that America's continuing aerial offensive in the Solomons area is keeping the Japanese from utilizing valuable time needed to build their installations in that area. Munda has been bombed at least 85 times since November 23.

Munda is a Jap air base in the central Solomons, approximately 180 miles northwest of Guadalcanal airfield.

Danger Seen

The secretary warned, however, that "every Jap base holds potentialities of danger."

Knox asserted that if the Japanese decided to move again toward the southern Solomons they undoubtedly would make use of their base on Munda.

America's aerial offensive has been mounting in intensity with Munda and powerful Jap strongholds in the Shortland island area as its target.

Shortland island is about 300 miles northwest of Guadalcanal. Asked about the submarine situation (Continued on Page Two)

In a night attack in the Solomons, heavy U. S. bombers carried out "minor bombing attacks" on Jap installations on Kahili and Ballale in the Northern Solomons and against Vila and Rekata bay in the Central Solomons. Results were not observed.

By International News Service Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox declared today that American forces are "stronger than ever" in the south Pacific while Japanese lines of communication are growing weaker.

"We are stronger than we have ever been in the Solomons area," Knox told a press conference.

To that, he added: "The Japanese lines of communication are growing weaker. This all goes to emphasize the process of attrition, especially with respect to sea going merchantmen." The secretary of the navy then explained that America's submarine campaign against Japanese communication lines "continues to be very successful."

Japs Have Trouble Despite dispatches from the southwest Pacific that the Japanese are increasing their garrisons and strengthening their bases in that war zone, Knox said that the Nipponese are having "increasing difficulties in maintaining their remote bases."

The secretary, however, declined to be drawn directly into a discussion of reports from Australia in which leaders there expressed fear of Japanese power in the islands north of that continent.

Knox refused to speculate on possible future Japanese or American strategy in the Pacific conflict and said the situation there at present is in a "state of suspended animation."

Asked if he were worried about the Jap base at Munda as a possible enemy invasion springboard, Knox replied that "I'm not worried."

He pointed out that America's continuing aerial offensive in the Solomons area is keeping the Japanese from utilizing valuable time needed to build their installations in that area. Munda has been bombed at least 85 times since November 23.

Munda is a Jap air base in the central Solomons, approximately 180 miles northwest of Guadalcanal airfield.

Danger Seen

The secretary warned, however, that "every Jap base holds potentialities of danger."

Knox asserted that if the Japanese decided to move again toward the southern Solomons they undoubtedly would make use of their base on Munda.

America's aerial offensive has been mounting in intensity with Munda and powerful Jap strongholds in the Shortland island area as its target.

Shortland island is about 300 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

"We have been more successful lately in getting convoys through to Russia with less loss but that, however, may be a temporary situation," Knox said.

Blitz Hits Japs

Meanwhile, in the Pacific, American and United Nations air operations against the Japanese and Guadalcanal areas were assuming the proportions of a blitz aimed at crippling or wiping out the remaining Jap bases in those zones. British Royal Air Force planes streaked half-way across southern Germany during the night to carry out a heavy bombardment of the industrial Bavarian city of Nuremberg.

The assault was the second against Nuremberg, site of motor and electrical plants producing equipment for submarines, within 11 days. The ancient and historic city, meeting place before the war of the Nazi party, last was attacked on February 25.

First information available on the raid indicated that it was one of the famed "thunderbolt" assaults in which a great weight of bombs is released in the shortest possible time.

Undoubtedly a vast number of 4,000 and 8,000-pound missiles were smashed down upon the city and it was thought possible this latest attack was far heavier than the February 25 raid.

Seven of the British planes were lost in the night's operations.

Russ Move Ahead

Crushing steadily closer to the Nazi-fortified city of Vyazma on the central front west of Moscow, Soviet forces today regained control of 20 more localities west of captured Gzhatsk.

They smashed their way forward west and southwest of Sychevka on the Rzhev-Vyazma railway where in one sector a large German garrison was surrounded and wiped out.

"A great battle is raging between the Red army and the German army where a Russian surge is pushing north in a flanking drive against Bryansk, the British radio reported today.

(A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said that the Germans are attempting to withdraw from Vyazma, but that the Russians are rapidly encircling the town.)

At the northern end of the southern front the Red army captured several strongly fortified localities west of Lgov, 50 miles west of Kursk.

Boeing Flying Fortress bombers and Lockheed Lightnings knocked 19 enemy planes out of the sky between Sicily and Tunisia today coincident with a further withdrawal by Field Marshal Rommel's land forces at the Mareth line.

Not a single American plane was lost.

The heavy air battle occurred at a point just ten miles north of Cap Bon.

A formation of 30 Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs attacked the Fortress squadron. The American pilots shot down ten of them while two others, their pilots overcome by confusion, collided in the air and crashed into the sea.

Shortly afterward, another group of Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs attacked the squadron of Lightnings.

Seven of the German craft were shot down without an American loss.

Retreat Continued

As Rommel's forces continued to retreat to the hills in the Mareth sector, they left behind 50 tanks including many of the latest type. Five different types of tanks fell into the hands of the eighth army, which stopped Rommel's drive without the loss of a single tank of its own.

The only ground activity in Tunisia yesterday consisted of three enemy attacks in the northern sector, all of which were repulsed by British and French forces, with heavy losses to the enemy.

Brilliant Allied victories in the southwest Pacific have blunted but not destroyed the Japanese menace to Australia. Military observers have not been misled by the shattering blow dealt the enemy in the battle of the Bismarck sea, in which 10 warships and 12 transports and cargo vessels destroyed during an attempt to reinforce the garrison at Lae, New Guinea.

After the first exhilaration of the complete victory, in which every ship of the formidable convoy was destroyed, military leaders in the southwest Pacific pointed out that the Japanese still have strong garrisons on the islands fringing Australia to the north and east, and powerful naval concentrations at various of these threatening bases.

The plea for additional planes was continued. Military spokesmen in the Southwest Pacific war theater deplored the general belief that the Japanese air force in that area has been hopelessly crippled

SEVEN POLISH TOWNS ERASED; MEN ARE SLAIN

LONDON, March 9 — The same fate as that meted out by the Nazis who razed the small Czech village of Lidice and slew all its male residents has been visited upon seven Polish towns, according to a Daily Telegraph dispatch today from Stockholm.

The towns destroyed, it was said, included Hucisko, Krolewiec, Lelitkow, Skobye, Galki, Szalzy, and Wismowice. They were razed in reprisal for alleged acts by patriots against Nazi occupation forces.

The account said the destruction was carried out by "SS" elite guard troops stationed at Lublin. Occupation forces at Warsaw were reported extremely nervous and it was said they had doubled guards in the military barracks. They have adopted a policy of carrying out frequent raids ostensibly to keep order, but really to round up strong men and deport them for forced labor to Germany, it was added.

AUTO TAG SALE MOVES SLOWLY IN CINCINNATI

Sale of 1943 automobile licenses is moving along at a comparatively slow pace in Cincinnati. A. J. Lyle, registrar, said Tuesday that many persons will not be able to drive their cars April 1 if they do not obtain new permits.

Stickers to be placed in the lower right hand corner of the automobile windshield are being sold this year instead of metal license tags.

Mr. Lyle is being aided by Mrs. James Lyle and Mrs. Walter Stout at his office in the Clifton garage building, South Court street.

State highway officials declare there will be no extension of the April 1 deadline.

SCORE TO SETTLE

RANDOLPH FIELD, Texas—United States Army Air Force Wings and the chance for combat duty against the Japs won't come any too soon for Aviation Cadet Richard S. Whitelaw of Saugus, Calif., now in basic flight training at Randolph Field, Texas. On December 7, 1941, Cadet Whitelaw was a member of the U. S. Marines, Air Group 21, stationed at Ewa Field, near Pearl Harbor. Several men in his outfit, including some of his best friends, were killed when Jap airmen swooped low and machine-gunned the field and barracks.

It takes a surprising amount of oratory to keep this country going.

DELLA B. PETERS ENDS LIFE AT HOME IN CITY

Mrs. Della B. Peters, 59, widow of Robert G. Peters, took her life by hanging Monday at her home, 621 North Court street. Mrs. Peters had tied a kimono around her neck and then tied it to a bedstead, strangling herself.

Mrs. Peters, who had been dependent since the death of her husband last October 16, was found in her bedroom by her daughter, Mrs. Harold Bowers of Ashville, Police Chief W. F. McCrady and Patrolman George Green at 2:30 p. m. Monday. Police were called by Mrs. Bowers after she had searched through the house for her mother and had found that her bedroom door had been locked from the inside.

It is believed Mrs. Peters had been dead since early morning. She was fully clothed, wearing a black dress.

Mrs. Bowers told police she had telephoned her mother at 8 a. m., but did not receive an answer. Several other telephone calls failed to bring an answer. Discovery of the body followed when Mrs. Bowers came to Cincinnati.

Acting Coroner B. T. Hedges returned a verdict of suicide.

Mrs. Peters was widely known in northeastern Pickaway county where she had spent most of her life. She was born April 12, 1883, a daughter of Oliver Perry and Josephine Blacker Brinker. She married Robert G. Peters on October 23, 1902. Mrs. Peters was a member of the Methodist church and the Ashville Pythian Sisters lodge.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Helen Bumgarner of Columbus; Mrs. Josephine Bowers of Ashville, and Mrs. Doris McKinnon of Urbana, Ill., and a son, Robert O. Peters of Cincinnati, who was called home from Regina, Ky., where he is working on a construction project. A brother, Dennis E. Brinker of Walnut township, also survives.

Private funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home, 621 North Court street, the Rev. Neil H. Peterson officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill mausoleum by the Albaugh Co. Friends may call at the Peters home from Wednesday noon until the hour of services.

BLANKET RAISE DEMANDED FOR EASTERN DYERS

PATERSON, N. J., March 9 — A blanket wage increase of 15 cents an hour today is being sought from 295 employers in the New England area by 40,000 silk and rayon dyers.

Joseph Knapik, national president of the federation of dyers, finishers, printers and bleachers of America, CIO, revealed that the request has already been presented to New York and New Jersey employers and will be put before New England employers at a meeting in Providence, R. I., within two weeks.

The dye workers also ask a guaranteed 48-hour week and a hospitalization program, including accident insurance to be paid by the employer.

The present dye workers contract gives men 85 cents an hour and women 62 cents. The union seeks $1 an hour for men and 77 cents for women.

CAPTAIN JOINS "CATERPILLARS" THE HARD WAY

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, March 9—Captain David Latane, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., was admitted today to the New Guinea chapter of the Caterpillar club of American pilots.

Latane won his membership the hard way, spending five days in some of the worst swamplands of New Guinea before his rescue.

Pilot Latane was forced to bail out of his plane when the engine caught fire. He landed deep in a swamp. Although dry land lay less than a mile away from the spot where he alighted three heart-breaking days passed before he was able to reach it.

Supporting himself by his "Mae West" life preserver, he began cutting a compass course through the tall swamp grass. Once on solid ground he followed the ridges down to the river and built himself a raft of logs and vines. For food he ate his emergency rations, pawpaws, a large lizard and jungle nuts.

On the fifth day of his ordeal he was seen from the air by another pilot, a colonel, who dropped food and water to him and also a hat to shield his head.

The next day he reached an emergency landing strip where he was picked up by a plane and returned to his base. He was hungry and scratched, but undismayed by his ordeal.

Capt. Latane is flying again, too.

actment of further lease-lend legislation in Washington, the Ambassador declared:

"The American congress is rather sensitive. It is generous and big-hearted as long as it feels it is helping someone. But give it the idea that it is not and it might be a different story."

Admiral Standley stated he considered it unfair to "mislead" the American public into giving millions of dollars while thinking they are aiding the Russians to fight against Germany while the Soviet people do not know about it.

"The Russians," he said, "seem to be trying to create the impression at home and abroad that they are fighting the war alone."

"It appears to be the desire on the part of the Russians to make out they are fighting the war with their own resources rather than to acknowledge help from anyone."

He drew attention to the fact that Soviet acknowledgements of aid have been made publicly in Britain and America while this has not been done at home.

"There is no question of the people in America not knowing the facts," he continued. "Here they don't."

Ambassador Standley pointed out that in addition to the lend-lease assistance the Russians were receiving considerable aid through the Red Cross and the Russian-American relief.

He told the press conference also that there had been no apparent change in the Soviet attitude regarding exchange of information on the conduct of the war between the Russian government and the United States.

OHIO TREMBLOR REPORTED FELT IN LOCAL AREA

Slight earthquake felt generally throughout Ohio, Michigan and parts of West Virginia between 10 and 11 p. m. Monday was also observed in Cincinnati. Several persons who live near the Norfolk and Western railroad tracks said that about the time the tremor was recorded they felt their residences quiver. Several said they thought that a train might have caused the disturbance, but observed that no train was going through at that time.

No damage was reported in any area where the quake was noticed. Windows were rattled and furniture was moved in some homes shaken by the tremor which officials at Fordham university seismograph described as a "surface" quake. The first shock was recorded at 10:23 p. m. and the second at 10:24 p. m., Cincinnati time.

The quake was described as the strongest to hit the Cleveland area in some years. It was believed to have centered in the Ohio-Great Lakes region.

Reports were received from Columbus, Akron, Cleveland, Zanesville and other Ohio cities that the quake had been observed there.

VICTORY DRIVE QUOTA DOUBLED; OPENS APRIL 12

Second Victory Loan drive, a gigantic war finance campaign with a national goal of $13,000,000,000, will begin April 12. Clark Will is chairman of the Pickaway County Victory Fund committee.

The quota is more than twice as large as the biggest liberty loan of the last war and greater than the $9,000,000,000 quota which was exceeded in the First Victory Loan last December. Local county quotas have not yet been set.

Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the U. S. treasury, has directed that the two treasury war finance organizations—Victory Fund Committee and War Savings Staff—cooperate in the April drive. The War Savings Staff has directed its effort toward sale of Series E bonds and savings stamps, including the payroll allotment plan, while the Victory Fund Committee has sold larger Victory Bonds to investors and persons with savings.

In Ohio the unified campaign will be directed by M. J. Fleming, Cleveland, chairman of the Fourth Federal Reserve District Victory Fund Committee. John H. McCoy, Columbus, is chairman of the 20-county area which includes Pickaway county.

Although the exact types of bonds to be offered in the April drive have not been announced, the treasury plans to sell securities in a wide variety of denominations and type to fit the investment needs of everyone.

would be to: Establish temporary governments over the axis nations, preferably headed by the United Nations citizens whose ancestry goes back to the axis nation to be governed; maintain a modern United Nations legion as a world police force, or "keep the peace" force; constitute an elementary bill of rights and code of justice for mankind and a United Nations court.

Administer the key international airports and airways of the world; administer the gateways to the seas; increase trade between the peoples of the world, thus improving world living standards and increase the literacy and improve the health of the world's peoples.

SCORE TO SETTLE

RANDOLPH FIELD, Texas—United States Army Air Force Wings and the chance for combat duty against the Japs won't come any too soon for Aviation Cadet Richard S. Whitelaw of Saugus, Calif., now in basic flight training at Randolph Field, Texas. On December 7, 1941, Cadet Whitelaw was a member of the U. S. Marines, Air Group 21, stationed at Ewa Field, near Pearl Harbor. Several men in his outfit, including some of his best friends, were killed when Jap airmen swooped low and machine-gunned the field and barracks.

It takes a surprising amount of oratory to keep this country going.

Buscar, in United States Army slang, means borrowed money.

DELLA B. PETERS ENDS LIFE AT HOME IN CITY

Mrs. Della B. Peters, 59, widow of Robert G. Peters, took her life by hanging Monday at her home, 621 North Court street. Mrs. Peters had tied a kimono around her neck and then tied it to a bedstead, strangling herself.

Mrs. Peters, who had been despondent since the death of her husband last October 16, was found in her bedroom by her daughter, Mrs. Harold Bowers of Ashville, Police Chief W. F. McCready and Patrolman George Green at 2:30 p. m. Monday. Police were called by Mrs. Bowers after she had searched through the house for her mother and had found that her bedroom door had been locked from the inside.

It is believed Mrs. Peters had been dead since early morning. She was fully clothed, wearing a black dress.

Mrs. Bowers told police she had telephoned her mother at 8 a. m., but did not receive an answer. Several other telephone calls failed to bring an answer. Discovery of the body followed when Mrs. Bowers came to Coroner B.

Acting Coroner B. T. Hedges returned a verdict of suicide.

Mrs. Peters was widely known in northeastern Pickaway county where she had spent most of her life. She was born April 12, 1883, a daughter of Oliver Perry and Josephine Blacker Brinker. She married Robert G. Peters on October 23, 1902. Mrs. Peters was a member of the Methodist church and the Ashville Pythian Sisters lodge.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Helen Bingham of Columbus; Mrs. Josephine Bowers of Ashville; and Mrs. Doris McKinnon of Urbana, Ill., and a son, Robert O. Peters of Circleville, who was called home from Regina, Ky., where he is working on a construction project. A brother, Dennis E. Brinker of Walnut township, also survives.

Private funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home, 621 North Court street, the Rev. Neil H. Peterson officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill mausoleum by the Albaugh Co. Friends may call at the Peters home from Wednesday noon until the hour of services.

MUST FILE REPORTS

Institutional and industrial users of canned goods were given notice Tuesday by the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office that they must report every two months to the local board on the number of persons served and the amount of sales for the preceding two months. Importance in fixing quotas for institutional and industrial users was stressed by the rationing office.

Buscar, in United States Army slang, means borrowed money.

Blanket raise demanded for eastern dyers

PATERSON, N. J., March 9 — A blanket wage increase of 15 cents an hour today is being sought from 295 employers in the New England area by 40,000 silk and rayon dyers.

Joseph Knapik, national president of the federation of dyers, finishers, printers and bleachers of America, CIO, revealed that the request has already been presented to New York and New Jersey employers and will be put before New England employers at a meeting in Providence, R. I., within two weeks.

The dye workers also ask a guaranteed 48-hour week and a hospitalization program, including accident insurance to be paid by the employer.

The present dye workers contract gives men 85 cents an hour and women 62 cents. The union seeks $1 an hour for men and 77 cents for women.

CAPTAIN JOINS "CATERPILLARS" THE HARD WAY

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, March 9—Captain David Latane, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., was admitted today to the New Guinea chapter of the Caterpillar club of American pilots.

Latane won his membership the hard way, spending five days in some of the worst swamps of New Guinea before his rescue.

Pilot Latane was forced to bail out of his plane when the engine caught fire. He landed deep in a swamp. Although dry land lay less than a mile away from the spot where he alighted three heart-breaking days passed before he was able to reach it.

Supporting himself by his "Mae West" life preserver, he began cutting a compass course through the tall swamp grass. Once on solid ground he followed the ridges down to the river and built himself a raft of logs and vines. For food he ate his emergency rations, pawpaws, a large lizard and jungle nuts.

On the fifth day of his ordeal he was seen from the air by another pilot, a colonel, who dropped food and water to him and also a hat to shield his head.

The next day he reached an emergency landing strip where he was picked up by a plane and returned to his base. He was hungry and scratched, but undismayed by his ordeal.

Capt. Latane is flying again, too.

REDS ASKED TO ADMIT U. S. AID

actment of further lease-lend legislation in Washington, the Ambassador declared:

"The American congress is rather sensitive. It is generous and big-hearted as long as it feels it is helping someone. But give it the idea that it is not and it might be a different story."

Admiral Standley stated he considered it unfair to "mislead" the American public into giving millions of dollars while thinking they are aiding the Russians to fight against Germany while the Soviet people do not know about it.

"The Russians," he said, "seem to be trying to create the impression at home and abroad that they are fighting the war alone."

"It appears to be the desire on the part of the Russians to make out they are fighting the war with their own resources rather than to acknowledge help from anyone."

He drew attention to the fact that Soviet acknowledgements of aid have been made publicly in Britain and America while this has not been done at home.

"There is no question of the people in America not knowing the facts," he continued. "Here they don't."

Ambassador Standley pointed out that in addition to the lend-lease assistance the Russians were receiving considerable aid through the Red Cross and the Russian-American relief.

He told the press conference also that there had been no apparent change in the Soviet attitude regarding exchange of information on the conduct of the war between the Russian government and the United States.

BREAD SLICING IS RESUMED BY LOCAL BAKERS

Local bakeries Tuesday resumed bread slicing after the practice had been banned since January 18.

Lifting of the ban was especially pleasing to housewives, many of whom had never been forced to slice bread until the OPA decreed that they must either learn to slice it or eat it in chunks.

Food Administrator Wickard, who announced the decree revision, said that disadvantages of the 'no slicing' plan outweighed advantages.

NO STRIKES IN TEXAS
TEXAS is a queer state. After Pearl Harbor it gave notice to the world, as many other states did, that it would let nothing interfere with the war effort. But it was explicit. It declared that there were to be no strikes, no slow-downs and no work stoppages of any kind. And reports seem to indicate that Texas has come very close to this patriotic rule of perfection.

But now, lest there be any possible question about the matter, Texas has put itself on record in a more explicit and binding way. The governor and representatives of 300,000 war industry workers formally sign a solemn agreement by which the governor has authority to "do anything and everything" necessary to prevent loss of production. Here is part of it:

"It is understood and agreed that there shall be no strikes, slow-downs, lock-outs or work stoppages of any nature within the state of Texas for the duration of the war." The representatives of organized labor pledge that they will not sanction or permit any interference by labor that will impede maximum production of war material; and in case unauthorized strike, lock-out, slow-down or other stoppage should develop, they authorize the governor to do everything in his power to straighten it out. They call on all industry to produce to the maximum, and to that end invoke the blessing of Almighty God.

BROADENING OUTLOOK
AMERICANS for a long time were noted for their knowledge of foreign languages. Except for those born abroad, who naturally brought with them the language of their mother country, few persons, no matter how well educated, could do more than read haltingly a sentence or two in French or German.

The war is changing that. Not only have European languages taken on greater importance, but knowledge of the out-of-the-way tongues of Asia and Africa has become vital to the conduct of the war.

Here our universities are stepping into the breach. Columbia is teaching the variety of Arabic spoken in Egypt, also Persian, Turkish, Chinese and Japanese. Japanese is also taught at Harvard, Yale and George Washington university. Yale is alone in teaching Malay, and the University of Michigan is the only institution to offer instruction in Siamese. The Morocco dialect of Arabic, which differs markedly from the Egyptian, is taught at the University of Pennsylvania. Icelandic is taught at Cornell, whose library already had the country's largest collection of books on that island.

Such broadening of the American intellectual outlook is one of the gains contributed by the war.

"Germany has no intention of attacking other peoples" said Adolf Hitler on April 1, 1939.

● THE MILITARY COMMAND (Army and Navy) gets what it wants in disregard of civilian requirements because it is a unit (or twins if you want to consider the Army's and Navy's establishments separately), whereas civilian voices are in the nature of a chorus—and a darned discordant one.
The executive administration itself isn't a unit. It appears to be run by a single president, but he has to exercise his authority through a multiplicity of separate departments and bureaus, which overlap and disagree among themselves, and it is hopeless for a lone individual in the White House to try to keep track of all their squabbles and conflicts.
The Army and the Navy groups are cohesive and they are a pretty effective partnership.
Furthermore, as experts, they must be listened to.
Their attitude is, "Let us have so-and-so—or else." "Or else" means that national ruin will follow, and the rest of us will be responsible for it, after they warned us, as formally on record. Naturally we are scared and comply with their demands. Furthermore, they have a professional bullying tone in conversation, which intimidates us.
Now, nobody questions the merits of their technique on the battlefield, at sea, in the heavens or under water.
Yet the civilian question does arise:
"How are we to provide the raw material for these fighters with which they are to do their scrapping?"
To that query the warriors answer:
"You fellows' job is to deliver the goods. To us, the method is immaterial. The essential point is that we require the stuff in significant

By DREW PEARSON

F. D. AGAINST NEW TERM
WASHINGTON — Real truth about the famous meeting between Democratic National Committee members and the President was that the President himself put forward the fourth term idea in a negative way, saying he could not take it. But committee members said the idea was put forward very much like the man who says he cannot come to dinner but wants to be urged.

There was no urging from any of the Democrats present except ex-Gov. Olson of California. From the rest came stony silence.

Here is the complete off-the-record story on one of the frostiest meetings between Democratic leaders and their chief in the ten long years of the Roosevelt administration.

Before they went to the White House, the leaders met at the Mayflower Hotel to discuss their strategy. They had been selected by Frank Walker as the result of a stormy session of the entire committee in Chicago at which there was open revolt against the President, and at which it was decided to send a small delegation to the White House to tell him so.

Nine committee members were picked, plus five executives of the party. At the advance-meeting at the Mayflower, it was suggested that one difficulty would be to keep the President from doing all the talking, and to get him to listen to the delegation's complaints.

BILL OF COMPLAINTS

So Frank Walker suggested that three be appointed to do the talking. Frank McHale, of Indiana, agreed that this was a good idea, and suggested James Noe, of Louisiana, to represent the South, James Quigley, of Nebraska, for the West, and Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, of Pennsylvania, for the East. Apparently Walker thought these three were too forthright. He is understood to have had in mind Mrs. Carolyn Wolfe, of Utah, O. S. Warden, of Montana, and ex-Governor Olson of California, known to be more friendly to the President. So Walker shifted his suggestion to a previous one that the delegation draw up a written statement naming their complaints.

The strategy was that if the President did all the talking, then they could then leave this bill of complaint with him.

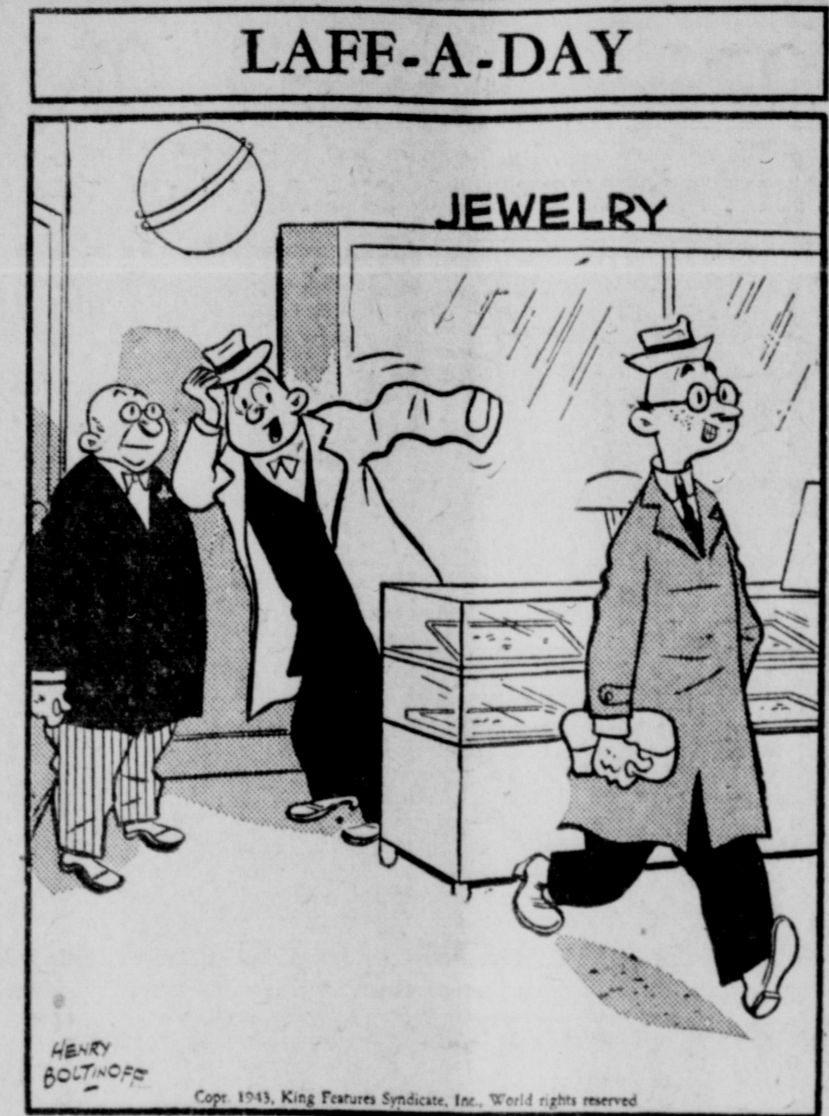

So the bill of complaint was drafted. It began with this sentence: "Jimmy Noe says that the party is in a hell of a mess." Then for three pages, single-spaced, it proceeded to detail the woes of the party, casting vitriolic condemnation on Harry Hopkins, Madame Secretary Perkins, Gov. Rex Tugwell of Puerto Rico, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration Black, and others. It was proposed that all of them be fired immediately.

During these discussions, McHale of Indiana, referred to Secretary Wickard as "cheap." He said he had gone to school with Wickard and he didn't know where the President got the idea to bring him to Washington and have him attempt to control food.

"He doesn't even know his way around Indiana," was McHale's cryptic remark.

When the delegation finally got to the White House, bearing their bill of complaint (Continued on Page Six)

DIET AND HEALTH

New Lenten Reducing Diet Takes Note of Priorities

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
TOMORROW is the beginning of Lent and once more we will print a reducing diet for Lent each day in this column.

Reducing this Lent is more or less compulsory; you are going to live on pretty slim rations whether you want to or not. On the whole, I think it will probably be good for all of us. The experience of life insurance companies in Germany during the last war was very peculiar: in the civil population—in spite of the enormous restrictions on food, which were necessary—the death rate for those over 40 was far lower than it had been for years. This was ascribed to the fact that compulsory dieting had reduced obesity and had improved metabolic diseases, such as diabetes and high blood pressure.

There are several rules about dieting which should be observed. In the first place, don't go on my Lenten reducing diet unless you are within the normal range of weight are particularly likely to try to reduce on account of vanity, and often weaken themselves and induce infections. You can find approximately your proper weight by the following formula:
Multiply the number of inches over 5 feet in height by 5 1/2 and add 110. For example, if you are 5 feet, 7 inches in height without shoes: 7 times 5 1/2 is 38 1/2, plus 110 is 148 1/2. If you are, then, 10 per cent overweight of this, you probably need to do some reducing.

A second general rule is that the only successful way to reduce is by dieting. Exercise won't do it, massage won't do it, rubbing won't do it.

Third, it isn't so much what you eat as how much you eat. People frequently ask me whether such and such a food is "thinning." No food is thinning. Of course certain foods are more concentrated nutritionally than others and of these you should eat less. Such things as lemon juice are supposed to be "thinning," but only to the extent that it has little caloric value and if you drink some of it, it may satisfy your appetite so that you don't go in for the more nutritious foods.

Most Fattening Foods
In general, the foods which are most fattening are the fats. Butter, butter substitutes, gravies, fat meats, cream, are all concentrated, fattening foods.

War cabinet now being urged
The list runs into the dozens and scores. They not only do not co-operate—they fight internally. Transportation and distribution are involved. All these agencies criss-cross and oppose one another. If one of them hits on a good scheme, some other one discounts it. But the war organization knows what it is up to, so far as WAR is concerned.

What is behind the scrambled civilian scenes is what it seems obvious of.

A real war cabinet, co-ordinating matters, is being urged now. It will be for a compacting of federal departments, as well as bureaus, if the scheme is adopted. And it will verge on the dictatorial. For instance—the suggestion is made that the War and Navy departments should be merged.

Congress, though, shows no such unification sentiment. It wants to be the main thing, as a democratic body.

CHAPTER FORTY
KAY WAS disappointed, as usual, by the telephone call. It wasn't Jake; it was Het.
"Hello, Het," she said listlessly. "How's everything going?"
"Everything is fine. The sale of the tickets has been surprisingly good, and at the rate it's going now the concert ought nearly to pay for itself. Also I took care of that little matter for you, so everything is paid for. Jake has a new suit of tails and there'll be some money left over for you, quite a bit, in fact."
"That's good news," Kay said, trying to summon up a little enthusiasm. Money didn't mean much to her these days. But she could picture how handsome Jake would look in tails—he was so tall and had just the figure for them, flat in the middle and broad shouldered.
"That's one of the things I wanted to tell you," Het went on. "The other is that I think you should come down for the concert. I know you don't think you should, that you're afraid you might upset Jake, but I don't think it would work that way. Yesterday he asked me casually if you were coming. I asked him if he cared much one way or the other. And he smiled that nice way he smiles and said yes, he guessed he did; he'd like to know you were somewhere near."
Kay's heart gave a leap. She didn't sound listless any more. "Did he really say that? You wouldn't just say so to make me feel better?"
"Of course I wouldn't. You know that. I thought we'd go together. I suggested to Jake that he get us seats, then he could put us where he wants you to sit."
"Oh, Het, I'm so excited I can hardly talk. I'll come down a day or so before. I need a new dress and I've a list of little things to buy since I'm going to be in New York." She also wanted to see the doctor, but she didn't mention this to Het.
The next few days sped by. She cleaned every corner of the house. She didn't even want to admit it to herself, but what she really hoped was that she'd be coming back with Jake. She was up until late at night, polishing silver, laundering curtains, making every inch spic and span. It didn't matter how tired she got; she'd have a chance to get some rest in New York.
The concert was on Friday night and she left for New York on Thursday. The only thing she minded leaving was the puppy, Johnny. He had been her only company for so long now and they were devoted to each other. She would have taken him along, but she knew New York hotels. So she reluctantly turned him over to Harry. Johnny would have fun running around a farm and scaring the chickens.
She took an early morning train and Harry drove her down to the station. She looked at the house a little sadly as they turned the bend that hid the house from view. It was a windy, blustery day and the house looked forlorn standing there alone. "I'll be back soon," she promised it. "Maybe I'll have Jake with me. The mere thought of it was enough to make her feel warm all over, in spite of the cold wind, the sunless sky."
The local grapevine had been working overtime and everyone in town knew about the concert. Kay had explained Jake's long absence on the ground of his strenuous preparations for the big day, and all people wished him well. Mike said when she bought her ticket, "Guess you'll be glad to have your young man back again. Pretty lonely for you out there, isn't it?"
"I haven't minded," she answered gallantly.
"Won't be long now," he said with a chuckle.
When the train pulled in, it seemed big and fearsome to Kay. She was used to quiet fields and silent woods. The conductor helped her on with her bag; Mike stood on the platform waving to her as the train left the station. She was in a turmoil, excited and a little scared.
She was nervous on her own score. What if Jake didn't want to see her again. It would be the end of the world for her.
She was nervous, too, on Jake's score. She knew what a state he must be in now. She'd give anything if she could help him, but she was powerless. She tried to read, but all she could keep in her mind were thoughts of Jake. The train swooped into darkness as they approached Grand Central and the end of the trip. A red cap took her bag, she got into a taxi and went to a small, inexpensive hotel Het had recommended.
It seemed strange to be in an unfamiliar room, to hear the noise and the clamor of the city outside. She didn't feel at home at all. She cold-creamed her face, combed her hair and then to celebrate the occasion she put some mascara on her eyelashes. She waited for the elation that she had expected at sight of New York, but it hadn't come yet.
She was meeting Het for lunch in an hour. Her room depressed her, so she put on her hat and coat and decided to take a walk. Her high-heeled shoes felt wobbly after a bluish, so she went slowly, looking at the people, the shops, the people looked smart and up-to-date. The shops attractive, but full of rather useless things. Still she was glad that she had enough money to buy herself a dress that afternoon. It was going to be fun having a good lunch that she'd had no hand in, strolling into a shop and leisurely taking her pick among the svelte, lovely evening frocks.
She and Het had a sumptuous lunch and didn't stop talking once. Seeing Het was the next best thing to seeing Jake. She was quite reassuring about Jake's state of mind.
"He's over the worst of the nervous part. Downing thinks he's a

Success With Strawberries in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

ANYONE CAN have success with strawberries in a Victory Garden, for strawberries are one of the easiest to grow of the small fruits practical for home gardening.

Strawberry varieties fall into two groups; early, medium, late and Everbearing varieties. Thus to enjoy a long season of berries in your Victory garden buy and plant some of each type.

The best time to plant strawberries is just as early in the spring as the soil is workable. There are numerous systems of planting strawberries, but for the average Victory garden make the rows from 2 to 4 feet apart and set the plants 15 to 18 inches apart in the rows, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. If the roots are excessively long, untangle them and cut them back, as illustrated, leaving them about 4 inches long for planting.

The Everbearing strawberries should be planted at the same time in the spring, as the early varieties. Blossoms will appear on the Everbearing plants early in the summer, but these should not be allowed to develop. Pinch off these early blossoms to permit all the plant's vitality to be used for sturdy plant growth. When this practice is followed with the Everbearing variety the plants will reward you in August with a bigger, better yield of berries.

Our melon grower, Frank Grice, will be at the same sort of production again this year, but just how many acres he intends to use in the growing of the fine ones, he has not fully determined as yet. And with the melon growing, he produces vegetable plants by the thousands, his extensive hot beds being in operation this good while.

Ray Heffner, Walnut township, a vegetable grower in a big way, in conversation with us yesterday, indicated that crop production might be trimmed down to as much as fifty percent compared to that grown last year and this because of a shortage of labor.

plaints, they filed past the President's desk and he shook hands with each.

"You are shaking hands with the next governor of Louisiana," said Noe.

FOURTH TERM SUGGESTION

"Take good care of yourself, Mr. President," said Mrs. Miller of Pennsylvania. "The party will need you next year."

This was the first fourth term suggestion, but it got no reaction from anyone present. The President then proceeded to take the bell and run with it. The meeting lasted 45 minutes, during which he talked practically all the time. He cut the ground partly off from under his belligerent visitors by saying that he knew appointments under Leon Henderson and the Office of Price Administration had been reprehensible. In fact, he castigated Henderson in such a way as to indicate that Henderson would never come back. He told how Henderson had appointed the treasurer of the Republican State Committee of Georgia, Harry Sommers, as chief of OPA's Rationing Division in Georgia and how another prominent Republican, Oscar R. Strauss, of Atlanta, was in charge of OPA's Southeastern office.

The visiting Democrats listened patiently. They had heard these stories before, knew all about them and were a bit irked at the President's wasting this valuable time. The President went on to explain in some detail how the Democratic party must begin preparing for the next election. He proposed to get a bill through Congress liberalizing voting for the armed forces. He also pointed out that women had become a big factor in the country, in the munitions plants and on the political fronts.

"They are generally for us and if we play things right, they will be with us again," the President said. Then he added his most significant line. "We have got to pick someone to carry on the war and our domestic policies, and I hope it won't be me. I am getting old now," the President said.

"Mr. President," spoke up ex-Gov. Olson, who wants to be Ambassador to Mexico. "You are the only man on the horizon as far as this country and the Democratic party are concerned. We need you. You are indispensable."

MR. NOE NO YES-MAN
Roosevelt said nothing. Some of those present looked daggers at Olson. Then the President continued with his political discourse. Finally Noe, of Louisiana, interrupted. "Mr. President," he said, "we didn't come here to listen to you. My name is Noe. I am not a yes man. I want to tell you that if the elections were held today we would have the socks beaten off us in Louisiana."

The President picked up his ears at this and asked Noe some questions. Quigley, of Nebraska, then squeezed in his two-cents worth. "Mr. President," he said, "speaking in the vernacular of wartime, I must tell you that you have lost your panzer divisions and today all you have left is your camp followers. What, for instance, are you going to do about all these Republicans on the payroll?"

"That is a problem," the President admitted, "but this is wartime and we have to use Republicans as well as Democrats." He promised, however, that he would look into the matter further.

PREDICT BRICKER FOR GOP

DePAUL SQUAD TO REPRESENT CENTRAL AREA

CHICAGO, March 9 — De Paul university's Blue Demons, winners of 18 of their 22 games, today became the midwest's representative in the National Collegiate Athletic association's championship basketball tournament in New York the last two weeks in March.

The invitation was extended yesterday by K. L. "Tug" Wilson, Northwestern university's athletic director and chairman of the N.C.A.A. selection committee for the five-state area of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, and promptly was accepted by De Paul.

Illinois and Notre Dame quintets also were considered by the committee, but neither school could have accepted because of absence from studies.

De Paul's acceptance was announced by Coach Ray Meyer who said that, because of the quarter basis at the school, the Blue Demons will not miss many studies. The present term ends March 20 when the Blue Demons will entrain for New York, he said.

The Blue Demons will go into action in New York March 21. Winner of the eastern playoff will meet the western playoff winner the night of March 30.

Playing its first season under Coach Meyer, former Notre Dame star and for two years assistant coach of the Irish, the Blue Demons rolled up an impressive list of victories including a triumph over Kentucky which has been named to represent the third district in New York.

IRISH FAVORING LONGER SEASON FOR '43 ELEVEN

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 9 — A longer Notre Dame football schedule for 1943 to include a game with Great Lakes November 27, was sought today from the university's faculty board in control of athletics.

As originally drawn up, the Irish 1943 schedule called for the final game to be played November 20 against Southern California.

If the faculty board approves, the bluejackets' game will be played either at Great Lakes or in Soldier field, Chicago.

pretty sure to be the Republican candidate, and during which part of the political discontent was blamed on OPA rationing. The President seemed to think that the country would have to take rationing in its stride regardless of political consequences.

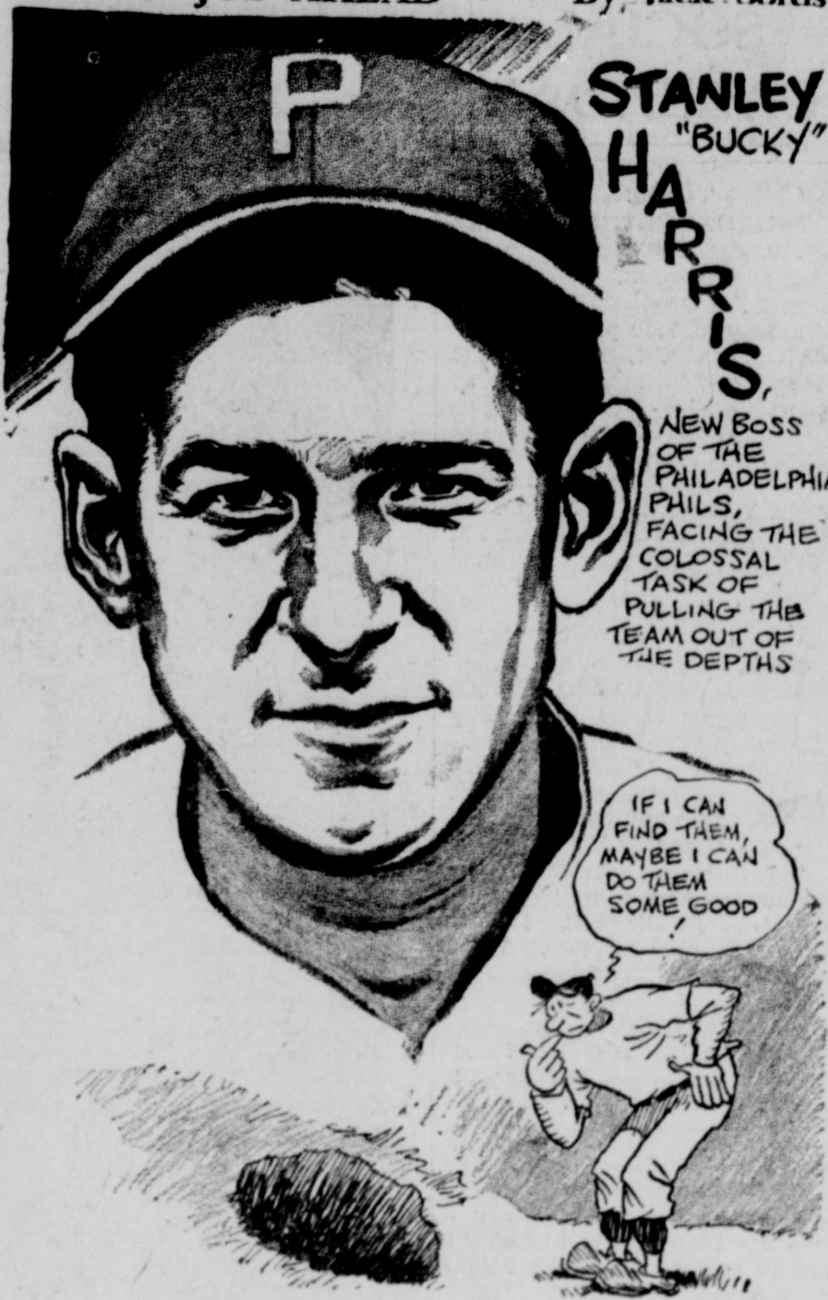

Looking across at the rotund figure of Mr. Noe, the President observed, "It looks as if Jimmie Noe is eating all right down in Louisiana."

"You seem to be doing all right yourself, Mr. President," shot back Noe with a glance at the President's own rotundity.

After this meeting, the delegates held a private session at the Mayflower, during which most of them were boiling mad. They felt they had accomplished nothing. Quigley, of Nebraska, remarked, "This is the last time I spend my time and money to come East. After this I'll read what Roosevelt says in the newspapers back in Omaha."

BOSTON LASS WINS
NEW YORK, March 9 — Gretchen Merrill of Boston today reigned as the new women's figure skating champion following her narrow victory over Dorothy Goos of New York. In winning the title, Miss Merrill edged out Miss Goos by a scant margin of 17.1 points tallying a total of 2,749.12 points to the latter's 2,732.02. Janette Ahrens of St. Paul took third place in the competition.

Greg Rice Chalks Up New Distance Record

WASHINGTON, March 9—Fleet-footed Gregory Rice, champion distance runner, today held a new two and a half mile world record of 11 minutes 23-3/10 seconds.

Running in the Touchdown Club's invitation event at Catholic university's 10th annual indoor meet last night, the tireless star from Notre Dame clipped 9-3/10 seconds off the mark he set in the same event last year.

Dave Williams of Georgetown and Joe McCluskey of Fordham tried to keep pace with Rice for the first three laps but he then turned on the speed, lapped the field and breezed in a lap and a half ahead.

Sharing the show with Rice was Columbia university's high jumper Bill Vessie, IC4A champion who topped the cross bar at six feet, seven inches.

CHICAGO TRACKS OFFER PLAN FOR 1943 OPERATION

CHICAGO, March 9 — Proposals for the wartime operation of Chicago's five tracks were to be considered today at a meeting of the Illinois racing board with representatives of the tracks.

A plan which met with favor, if it is approved by the Office of Defense Transportation, would place both Arlington Park and Washington Park meetings at the latter track which is served by an electric suburban line.

Lincoln fields and Hawthorne both would operate at the Hawthorne track. Sportsman's park, the little half-mile, would remain at home since it has the same transportation facilities as Hawthorne, an elevated line in conjunction with buses.

HENRY BLASTS TIPPY LARKIN; SEEKS THE BEAU

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9 — Henry Armstrong looked forward with confidence today to the fistic battle with Beau Jack at Madison Square Garden, after dropping Tippy Larkin, the gunner from Garfield, N. J. in the second round last night at the San Francisco civic auditorium.

One minute and 9 seconds after the round began, the Los Angeles Negro floored Larkin with a terrific right, followed by a left hook to the chin.

Last week Armstrong was sidetracked from the running temporarily when he lost to Willie Joyce in Los Angeles.

The tournament will run for four days with 12 teams competing.

plaints, they filed past the President's desk and he shook hands with each.

"You are shaking hands with the next governor of Louisiana," said Noe.

FOURTH TERM SUGGESTION

"Take good care of yourself, Mr. President," said Mrs. Miller of Pennsylvania. "The party will need you next year."

This was the first fourth term suggestion, but it got no reaction from anyone present. The President then proceeded to take the ball and run with it. The meeting lasted 45 minutes, during which he talked practically all the time. He cut the ground partly out from under his belligerent visitors by saying that he knew appointments under Leon Henderson and the Office of Price Administration had been reprehensible. In fact, he castigated Henderson in such a way as to indicate that Henderson would never come back. He told how Henderson had appointed the treasurer of the Republican State Committee of Georgia, Harry Sommers, as chief of OPA's Rationing Division in Georgia and how another prominent Republican, Oscar R. Straus, of Atlanta, was in charge of OPA's Southeastern office.

The visiting Democrats listened patiently. They had heard these stories before, knew all about them and were a bit irked at the President's wasting this valuable time.

The President went on to explain in some detail how the Democratic party must begin preparing for the next election. He proposed to get a bill through Congress liberalizing voting for the armed forces. He also pointed out that women had become a big factor in the country, in the munitions plants and on the political fronts.

"They are generally for us and if we play things right, they will be with us again," the President said. Then he added his most significant line. "We have got to pick someone to carry on the war and our domestic policies, and I hope it won't be me. I am getting old now," the President said.

"Mr. President," spoke up ex-Gov. Olson, who wants to be Ambassador to Mexico, "you are the only man on the horizon as far as this country and the Democratic party are concerned. We need you. You are indispensable."

MR. NOE NO YES-MAN
Roosevelt said nothing. Some of those present looked daggers at Olson. Then the President continued with his political discourse. Finally Noe, of Louisiana, interrupted. "Mr. President," he said, "we didn't come here to listen to you. My name is Noe. I am not a yes man. I want to tell you that if the elections were held today we would have the socks beaten off us in Louisiana."

The President picked up his ears at this and asked Noe some questions. Quigley, of Nebraska, then squeezed in his two-cent worth. "Mr. President," he said, "speaking in the vernacular of wartime, I must tell you that you have lost your panzer divisions and today all you have left is your camp followers. What, for instance, are you going to do about all these Republicans on the payroll?"

"That is a problem," the President admitted. "But this is wartime and we have to use Republicans as well as Democrats." He promised, however, that he would look into the matter further.

PREDICT BRICKER FOR GOP
There were some further discussions, during which it was agreed that Gov. Bricker, of Ohio, was

DePAUL SQUAD TO REPRESENT CENTRAL AREA

CHICAGO, March 9 — De Paul university's Blue Demons, winners of 18 of their 22 games, today became the Midwest's representative in the National Collegiate Athletic association's championship basketball tournament in New York the last two weeks in March.

The invitation was extended yesterday by K. L. "Tug" Wilson, Northwestern university's athletic director and chairman of the N.C.A.A. selection committee for the five-state area of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, and promptly was accepted by De Paul.

Illinois and Notre Dame quintets also were considered by the committee, but neither school could have accepted because of absence from studies.

De Paul's acceptance was announced by Coach Ray Meyer who said that, because of the quarter basis at the school, the Blue Demons will not miss many studies. The present term ends March 20 when the Blue Demons will entrain for New York, he said.

The Blue Demons will go into action in New York March 24. Winner of the eastern playoff will meet the western playoff winner the night of March 30.

Playing its first season under Coach Meyer, former Notre Dame star and for two years assistant coach of the Irish, the Blue Demons rolled up an impressive list of victories including a triumph over Kentucky which has been named to represent the third district in New York.

IRISH FAVORING LONGER SEASON FOR '43 ELEVEN

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 9 — A longer Notre Dame football schedule for 1943 to include a game with Great Lakes November 27, was sought today from the university's faculty board in control of athletics.

As originally drawn up, the Irish 1943 schedule called for the final game to be played November 20 against Southern California.

If the faculty board approves, the bluejackets' game will be played either at Great Lakes or in Soldier field, Chicago.

DODGERS SEND BABE DAHLGREN TO PHILLY NINE

Brooklyn Obtains L. Waner And Al Glossop For First Baseman

CAMILLI WILL RETURN

Swamp Of Importance To Both Clubs; Rickey Announces Action

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, March 9—First Baseman Babe Dahlgren has been traded to the Philadelphia Phillies for Outfielder Lloyd Little Poison Waner and Infielder Al Glossop, Brooklyn Dodger President Branch Rickey announced today as a follow up to the news that slugging Dolph Camilli will be back in Flushing next season.

No cash was involved in committing the much-traveled Dahlgren to Philly exile, Rickey said. The transaction was one calculated to help both clubs, and the situation now can be interpreted about as follows:

1—With Camilli in line to play first for the Dodgers, they had no need for Dahlgren, whom they wanted to get rid of anyhow, and by sending him to the Phils the latter received a successor to Nick Etten, sold a few weeks ago to the Yankees.

2—In Glossop, the Dodgers get a utility infielder to fill in around the keystone of the elderly Camilli. Herman Duroche, Vaughan quartet and an outfielder in Little Poison Waner who still can go and might retain stardom in times like these.

3—Little Poison and Brother Paul (Big Poison) are teammates again.

The Phils wanted Dahlgren for the simple reason that the rules stipulate every team should have a first baseman, of which the Phils had absolutely none, and now have one who was good enough to play up to and through a winning world series with the Yankees.

The Dodgers wanted Glossop despite an anemic batting average, because he was great against the Dodgers last year and, furthermore, the veteran infield is going to need help often.

As for Little Poison Waner's transfer from Philly to Brooklyn, this is a transaction that really leads to some speculation.

It may be that the Poison Waner act which for so many years was a big part of the attack and two-thirds of the outfield at Pittsburgh will be resumed for better or worse with the Dodgers in an outfield composed of Joe Medwick in left, Lloyd Little Poison in center and Paul Big Poison in right. It could happen in these times.

Lloyd's chief competition will come from the veteran Johnny Cooney and Augie Galan. Paul will have to beat out Dixie Walker, if he decides to leave his defense job and play ball, and several lesser lights. They traveled many weary miles together as Pirates, those two Waners, and the widely divergent routes to windup finally as Dodgers, where the greatest of all modern day baseball brother acts may be reestablished.

Paul, who will be 40 in April, went to the Pirates in 1926, immediately became a regular with a .336 batting average in his first season and went on to lead the league in hitting three times. Lloyd, who will be 37 on March 15, went to the Pirates a year after Paul, but like his older brother started as a regular and in his first season belted the pitching to the tune of .355. They were set from then through 1940 when brother act was broken up by the mid-Winter unconditional release of Paul.

He hooked up with Brooklyn in 1941, then was released and signed with the Boston Braves. He got his way back to Brooklyn recently and brother Lloyd followed him yesterday. The latter stayed with the Pirates until 1941 and was traded to the Braves, then to the Cincinnati Reds, and on his unconditional release hooked on with the Phils for last season.

In 114 games with the Braves last season, Paul hit .258 and made the 3,000th hit of his career. In 101 games with the Phils, Lloyd batted .261.

That brother act might even appear in a world series again after, lo, these many years. All of which comes under the heading of the wheel of fortune spins, etc.

PREFER ONE CHANCE

IN PLANNING the play of a hand, you may see two alternative moves to gain tricks, each of which is an even money or 50-50 chance. But, if one of those chances, in case it succeeds, will produce only about one trick gain and the other can be worth several tricks, if it works, there is not much argument about which to choose. Furthermore, the situation may be such that, after trying one chance, you may still attempt the other, whereas trying them in reverse order may not be possible.

A, so he could try the diamond finesse, which lost. The club return was ruffed in dummy, the diamond A and Q cashed for a heart discard, the heart A played and a heart ruffed, then a third club ruffed and a second heart. South scored two high trumps then, but had to give up the club Q at the end, being down one.

Safer play was available—a lead toward the heart Q after trumps were out. South, after ruffing the opening club K, could have taken the spade A and K, then led a small heart, hoping East had the K, an even chance, which would have worked. East would not have dared return a diamond, so would have chosen a club for another ruff in dummy. Then a heart to the Q, a diamond to the A, refusing the finesse, the heart A dropping the J, and additional hearts for discard of all losers in his own hand, would have made the contract. Even if the heart play had failed, the diamond finesse could still have been tried, whereas the contrary order could not have been essayed.

Army Officer Praises Farmer as Team Mate of Soldier

COLONEL SPANN STRESSES NEED FOR PRODUCTION

Quartermaster Officer Speaks At National Farm Day Meet

WORLD DEPENDS ON U. S.

Growers Told About Need For More Food Than Ever Before Grown

The farmer was eulogized Monday evening by Colonel George Spann, chief supply officer of the Columbus quartermaster depot, as "the closest teammate of a soldier at the front" when the army man addressed a rural and city audience of approximately 200 persons in Memorial Hall. The meeting marked Pickaway county's observance of National Farm Day, the event being conducted throughout the nation with farm gatherings everywhere. March 8 marked the tenth year since the start of organized agricultural programs in the nation.

"A soldier has many teammates," Colonel Spann told his listeners, "but the most important and the closest is the farmer. No man can fight on an empty stomach. A soldier must be strong and well fed, and he must be able to endure hardships."

Food Essential

"There is only one way to keep him going and that is with food," the quartermaster officer said. "The American soldier is the best fed in the world, each soldier receiving five and one-half pounds of food or its equivalent each day. This is one and one-half pounds more than the civilian uses."

"Give a soldier warm clothes and enough food," Colonel Spann continued, "and you will keep up his morale. No soldier can do his best in Africa, the South Pacific jungles, or anywhere else if he is not fed sufficient food."

Job For Farmer

"No one but the farmer can do this job," the audience was told. "The quartermaster corps can serve the men only as long as the farmer continues to produce food. Figures of production last year were splendid ones. Your harvests helped the Russians in their great fight against the Nazi invader, and helped the British Eighth army at El Alamein."

"The production from your farms brings new hope to all the occupied nations of the world," the colonel declared.

Colonel Spann reported that three billion tons of United States food were sent to other lands last year.

"We still have a job at home," the colonel said, "because there are thousands in war plants and other thousands working harder at their jobs elsewhere than ever before."

The importance of soybeans, castor beans, wool, cotton, peanuts, and flax was pointed out by Colonel Spann, who said that each product and its by-products has a great value to the war effort.

Must Set Records

"This year," the supply chief declared, "more food is needed than ever before. The farmer must be willing to do all that he can with whatever he has to do it with."

The army man spoke generally for a while, stating that Uncle Sam had come far since Pearl Harbor, but that nothing has happened yet to make the nation's people over-optimistic.

The colonel, accompanied by Captains E. L. McLaughlin and J. N. Lorie, brought a supply of army rations to Circleville with him, and after the address the audience was served some army food. Captains McLaughlin and Lorie discussed the various rations, this feature of the meeting being of much interest to the group.

The entire program was planned by the Pickaway county AAA office and Mrs. Fannie Brooks, county AAA fieldwoman. Several persons spoke briefly, including Harry Donohoo, Blanchester, AAA district field man, who traced the AAA organization; Charles Rose and Paul Peck, who, in an interesting interview, outlined the method of establishing war crop goals; G. D. McDowell, who spoke of the schools in their relationship to the farm problem, and Ray Alter, representing the Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

Spencer Reports

Lawrence Spencer of the AAA office reported on crop surveys, declaring that indications are that most Pickaway county farmers will increase their production this year. He said that of 601 farms on which reports had been made

County Ration Board Answers Questions On Processed Food Quotas

Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board today released the following answers covering questions asked by housewives on the processed foods rationing program:

Q. My baby is on a diet requiring more canned baby food than my ration allows. How can I get more? A. You can get an additional allowance by presenting to your local ration board a physician's statement stating why present allowances are insufficient for the child's diet, how much more processed foods he needs, and why fresh and unrationed foods cannot be used to supplement the ration.

Q. How can a consumer who lives a long distance from a shopping center obtain ration stamps for buying foods in quantity for longer periods? A. Anyone who lives a long distance from a shopping center or because of transportation difficulties cannot arrange to shop during each ration period may obtain a purchase certificate from his local board allowing him to buy up to the full point value of the stamps in the family's ration books at one time.

Q. If I need dry peas and beans for garden seed must I surrender stamps from Book Two to buy them? A. No. But you must apply to your local board for a certificate for sufficient points to provide the seeds you need for planting.

Q. How can a blind person living alone get an extra allowance of rationed canned food? A. Anyone who needs an extra allowance of canned food because he is ill or physically handicapped may get a certificate for the additional amount he needs by presenting the board with a signed physician's statement.

Q. Are pickled relishes made of vegetables rationed? A. No. Relishes, including pickled onions, tomatoes, watermelon, cocktail onions, pickled mushrooms and oranges, and spiced cantaloupe and watermelon, are not rationed. Also excluded are vegetable seasonings, both liquid and salt, as well as all peppers and pimientos.

Q. Are ingredients for Chinese dishes, such as canned bean sprouts, canned bamboo sprouts, and water chestnuts, rationed? A. Canned sprouts — both bean and bamboo as well as canned water chestnuts are rationed.

Q. How can service men home on leave for three or four days get rationed foods? A. Ration certificates for service men on leave are issued only for those who are home for seven days or longer. Ration certificates are obtained by presenting furlough papers to ration boards.

Q. How can church groups get rationed foods for church suppers? A. The minister or other representative of the church as an institution may get a certificate through the local board.

Q. Suppose I live in a boarding house and turn in my ration book at the beginning of the month. How can I get stamps if I move before the end of the month? A. If you live in a boarding house where 50 or more people eat, no stamps will be removed from your book. If stamps have been taken out, ask your boarding house to make a satisfactory adjustment.

Q. Are dried parsley and dried onion flakes rationed? A. No.

OHIO FARMERS TO MEET GOALS OF PRODUCTION

Only Crops Requiring Much Hand Labor To Fall Short Of Goals

KRUSE VOICES OPTIMISM

Opinions Based On Reports Filed By All Counties In State

That Ohio farmers will meet or exceed their 1943 food production goals, except in certain crops which require much hand labor, was indicated today by Elmer F. Kruse, Ohio AAA chief.

Kruse announced that the goals would be met when he spoke to a group of farmers assembled in Columbus.

Kruse based the assertion on first returns from a farm-to-farm food production survey now under way in Ohio. Telegrams, he said, have been received from all 88 counties.

Kruse outlined the 1943 food production picture as follows:

Soybeans—Farmers intend to produce 3 percent more than in 1942, or about 1,290,000 acres.

Potatoes—An increase of 12 percent, or about 100,800 acres, indicated. This would be less than the desired increase of 18 percent.

Field corn—Approximately 3,593,000 acres will be planted, an increase of 8 percent. Farmers have been asked to produce only 6 percent more.

Canning crops: Tomatoes—No definite goal established, but Ohio farmers indicate they intend to increase acreage by 3 percent.

Peas—Indications point to a total of 6,000 acres in 1943, as against 6,600 acres last year.

Sweet corn—Farmers probably will plant 91 percent of 1942 acreage, or about 20,000 acres.

Sugar beets—About 51,000 acres expected to be planted—approximately the same as last year.

The survey to date, Kruse said, proves that "Ohio farmers are not going to fall down on the job if they can help it."

"Our farmers love to produce," he declared, "and today they are fulfilling their patriotic duty despite the initial handicaps of too little machinery and too little labor."

In cases where farmers are not meeting their 1943 goals, he said, the reasons can be traced to labor and machinery shortages.

$10,530 SPENT IN OPERATING COUNTY HOME

Cost of operation at the Pickaway county infirmary during 1942 was $10,530.81, Superintendent James Mowery informed county commissioners at their Monday meeting.

Mr. Mowery reported that during the year he sold farm produce from the property for $1,052.23 and that he had received $699.74 from inmates and friends. Total receipts for the year other than county appropriation amounted to $1,751.97.

The home spent $434.67 during 1942 for care of transients, including food, hospitalization, ambulance and in some instances clothing.

During the year the average number of inmates was 39, and the average cost per meal fed the inmates was 20.29 cents. Per capita cost for the year was $235 per person, Mr. Mowery reported.

HARRY S. ILIFF GAINS JUDGMENT OF $6,600

Judgment for $6,600 was ordered in common pleas court Tuesday by Judge Meeker Terwilliger in the damage action of Harry S. Iliff of London against James D. White of Detroit and Chillicothe. The judgment was decreed after White failed to appear to offer a defense against a claim Iliff had made for damages to his car and for loss of its use after it was struck by White's automobile north of Circleville several months ago.

Victory Garden Plans Mapped at Assembly Of Counselor Group

Initial talks designed to make information available for planning and operation of Victory Gardens were heard Monday evening when the county Victory Garden committee and members of the Victory Garden counselor group met in the Pickaway county courthouse.

The meeting was addressed by L. C. Chadwick of Ohio State university. Selection of Victory Garden sites, preparation of soils and planning of crop rotations were discussed by the OSU man.

The next meeting to be held in April will be for instruction in canning and preserving vegetables and fruits from the garden.

One of the most important things discussed was the certainty that Victory Gardens are not simply a matter for this year's interest and that the preparation and planning should be approached with the thought that home production of garden products and fruits is going to be necessary for at least a period of two or three years after the war.

Severe Rationing

Rationing of foods is bound to be much more severe than anyone now realizes, the speaker pointed out. Decrease rather than an increase in commercially preserved foods is bound to occur. Last year at least a third of the tomato crop spoiled in the fields that were grown for canning, because help was not available for getting the tomatoes to the factories when they were in condition for preserving. This year it is being found more difficult to secure acreage for canning crops because of labor shortages. So for a period after the war it is going to be necessary to feed armies that are still abroad the conquered nations and our nation can not be selfish when it comes to feeding the nations of Europe and Asia until they can get back into production of their own foods.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS DISCUSSION OF PAPER

Roy Zellers, manager of the Chillicothe Paper Co., made an interesting discussion of "Paper" Monday evening when he appeared as speaker on the Kiwanis club program.

Mr. Zeller said that paper is important in our entire life, that our birth is recorded on it and that it also reports our death.

A short history of the paper-making industry was told, and the importance of the industry in the war effort with all orders being placed on paper was stressed.

Army Officer Praises Farmer as Team Mate of Soldier

COLONEL SPANN STRESSES NEED FOR PRODUCTION

Quartermaster Officer Speaks At National Farm Day Meet

WORLD DEPENDS ON U. S.

Growers Told About Need For More Food Than Ever Before Grown

The farmer was eulogized Monday evening by Colonel George Spann, chief supply officer of the Columbus quartermaster depot, as "the closest teammate of a soldier at the front" when the army man addressed a rural and city audience of approximately 200 persons in Memorial Hall. The meeting marked Pickaway county's observance of National Farm Day, the event being conducted throughout the nation with farm gatherings everywhere. March 8 marked the tenth year since the start of organized agricultural programs in the nation.

"A soldier has many teammates," Colonel Spann told his listeners, "but the most important and the closest is the farmer. No man can fight on an empty stomach. A soldier must be strong and well fed, and he must be able to endure hardships."

Food Essential

"There is only one way to keep him going and that is with food," the quartermaster officer said that the American soldier is the best fed in the world, each soldier receiving five and one-half pounds of food or its equivalent each day. This is one and one-half pounds more than the civilian uses.

"Give a soldier warm clothes and enough food," Colonel Spann continued, "and you will keep up his morale. No soldier can do his best in Africa, the South Pacific jungles, or anywhere else if he is not fed sufficient food."

Job For Farmer

"No one but the farmer can do this job," the audience was told. "The quartermaster corps can serve the men only as long as the farmer continues to produce food. Figures of production last year were splendid ones. Your harvests helped the Russians in their great fight against the Nazi invader, and helped the British Eighth army at El Alamein."

"The production from your farms brings new hope to all the 'occupied nations of the world,'" the colonel declared.

Colonel Spann reported that three billion tons of United States food were sent to other lands last year.

"We still have a job at home," the colonel said, "because there are thousands in war plants and other thousands working harder at their jobs elsewhere than ever before."

The importance of soybeans, castor beans, wool, cotton, peanuts, and flax was pointed out by Colonel Spann, who said that each product and its by-products has a great value to the war effort.

Must Set Records

"This year," the supply chief declared, "more food is needed than ever before. The farmer must be willing to do all that he can with whatever he has to do it with."

The army man spoke generally for a while, stating that Uncle Sam had come far since Pearl Harbor, but that nothing has happened yet to make the nation's people over-optimistic.

The colonel, accompanied by Captains E. L. McLaughlin and J. N. Lorie, brought a supply of army rations to Circleville with him, and after the address the audience was served some army food. Captains McLaughlin and Lorie discussed the various rations, this feature of the meeting being of much interest to the group.

The entire program was planned by the Pickaway county AAA office and Mrs. Fannie Brooks, county AAA fieldwoman. Several persons spoke briefly, including Harry Donohoo, Blanchester, AAA district field man, who traced the AAA organization; Charles Rose and Paul Peck, who, in an interesting interview, outlined the method of establishing war crop goals; G. D. McDowell, who spoke of the schools in their relationship to the farm problem, and Ray Alter, representing the Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

Spencer Reports

Lawrence Spencer of the AAA office reported on crop surveys, declaring that indications are that most Pickaway county farmers will increase their production this year. He said that of 601 farms on which reports had been made

County Ration Board Answers Questions On Processed Food Quotas

Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board today released the following answers covering questions asked by housewives on the processed foods rationing program:

Q. My baby is on a diet requiring more canned baby food than my ration allows. How can I get more? A. You can get an additional allowance by presenting to your local ration board a physician's statement stating why present allowances are insufficient for the child's diet, how much more processed foods he needs, and why fresh and unrationed foods cannot be used to supplement the ration.

Q. How can a consumer who lives a long distance from a shopping center obtain ration stamps for buying foods in quantity for longer periods? A. Anyone who lives a long distance from a shopping center or because of transportation difficulties cannot arrange to shop during each ration period may obtain a purchase certificate from his local board allowing him to buy up to the full point-value of the stamps in the family's ration books at one time.

Q. If I need dry peas and beans for garden seed must I surrender stamps from Book Two to buy them? A. No. But you must apply to your local board for a certificate for sufficient points to provide the seeds you need for planting.

Q. How can a blind person living alone get an extra allowance of rationed canned food? A. Anyone who needs an extra allowance of canned food because he is ill or physically handicapped may get a certificate for the additional amount he needs by presenting the board with a signed physician's statement.

Q. Are pickled relishes made of vegetables rationed? A. No. Relishes, including pickled onions, tomatoes, watermelon, cocktail onions, pickled mushrooms and oranges, and spiced cantaloupe and watermelon, are not rationed. Also excluded are vegetable seasonings, both liquid and salt, as well as all peppers and pimientos.

Q. Are ingredients for Chinese dishes, such as canned bean sprouts, canned bamboo sprouts, and water chestnuts, rationed? A. Canned sprouts — both bean and bamboo as well as canned water chestnuts are rationed.

Q. How can service men home on leave for three or four days get rationed foods? A. Ration certificates for service men on leave are issued only for those who are home for seven days or longer. Ration certificates are obtained by presenting furlough papers to ration boards.

Q. How can church groups get rationed foods for church suppers? A. The minister or other representative of the church as an institution may get a certificate through the local board.

Q. Suppose I live in a boarding house and turn in my ration book at the beginning of the month. How can I get stamps if I move before the end of the month? A. If you live in a boarding house where 50 or more people eat, no stamps will be removed from your book. If stamps have been taken out, ask your boarding house to make a satisfactory adjustment.

Q. Are dried parsley and dried onion flakes rationed? A. No.

OHIO FARMERS TO MEET GOALS OF PRODUCTION

Only Crops Requiring Much Hand Labor To Fall Short Of Goals

KRUSE VOICES OPTIMISM

Opinions Based On Reports Filed By All Counties In State

That Ohio farmers will meet or exceed their 1943 food production goals, except in certain crops which require much hand labor, was indicated today by Elmer F. Kruse, Ohio AAA chief.

Kruse announced that the goals would be met when he spoke to a group of farmers assembled in Columbus.

Kruse based the assertion on first returns from a farm-to-farm food production survey now under way in Ohio. Telegrams, he said, have been received from all 88 counties.

Soybeans—Farmers intend to produce 3 percent more than in 1942, or about 1,290,000 acres.

Potatoes—An increase of 12 percent, or about 100,800 acres, indicated. This would be less than the desired increase of 18 percent. Field corn—Approximately 3,593,000 acres will be planted, an increase of 8 percent. Farmers have been asked to produce only 6 percent more.

Canning crops: Tomatoes—No definite goal established, but Ohio farmers indicate they intend to increase acreage by 3 percent.

Peas—Indications point to a total of 6,000 acres in 1943, as against 6,600 acres last year.

Sweet corn—Farmers probably will plant 91 percent of 1942 acreage, or about 20,000 acres.

Sugar beets—About 51,000 acres expected to be planted—approximately the same as last year.

The survey to date, Kruse said, proves that "Ohio farmers are not going to fall down on the job if they can help it."

"Our farmers love to produce," he declared, "and today they are fulfilling their patriotic duty despite the initial handicaps of too little machinery and too little labor."

In cases where farmers are not meeting their 1943 goals, he said, the reasons can be traced to labor and machinery shortages.
